

I was particularly interested in the following comment found in the product specification:

Users first need a brief introduction to what the product does. Sometimes this is more for the benefit of people who haven't yet bought the product, and are just looking at the manual. However, it also serves to put the rest of the manual, and the product itself, in the proper context. Users first need a brief introduction to what the product does. Sometimes this is more for the benefit of people who haven't yet bought the product, and are just looking at the manual. However, it also serves to put the rest of the manual, and the product itself, in the proper context.